MANY CHANGES

Made On The L. &amp; A. Division of The L. &amp; N.

The L. & A. division of the L. & N. Railroad Company has made many changes within the past few weeks. On October 1, the L. & A. division became known as the Eastern Kentucky division and its management became operative under the following named gentlemen: Mr. M. Serreant was appointed Superintendent of Division; Captain John R. Pates, of this city, becomes Master of Trains; Col. J. E. Cleary, also of this city, was made Chief Train Dispatcher; Mr. H. S. Hills, of Irvine, was appointed Master Mechanic; Mr. P. F. Kesh-einer, Associate Train Master; Mr. J. O. Ely, Road Master; Mr. R. T. Stafford, Supervisor of Bridges and Buildings; Walter Moore, Assistant engineer; Mr. O. M. Hardesty, Special Stock and Claim Agent.

Two officers of Master of Trains and Chief Engineer, who have been located at Richmond for several years, were moved to Irvine on October 1. The station at Irvine has been named Revena.

The Eastern Kentucky division includes that portion of the road between Frankfort and Maloney, Ky.

Under the present management of the company hopes to be able to take of efficient care of the large increase of business of the road and give its patrons better service in the future than during the past.

During recent years the L. & A. has become a great relief for the people and the natural products of the mountains of Eastern Kentucky are covered with handwood timber of the finest variety, and coal and timber and minerals are to be found in greatest abundance, and it is only a question of short time when the Eastern Kentucky division will be one of the most prolific and best paying division of the L. & N. System, if not already the best. Passenger and freight travel have been largely on the increase for some time.

Business has only just begun. Extensive improvements are now being made all along the line, and is only a question of a short time when the old L. & A. System will become one of the marvels of Kentucky.

$500,000 TRAIN ROBBERY

Masked Men Hold Up B. &amp; O. Express Train With Shot Guns.

Wheeling, W. Va. (Special): Armed with sawed-off shotguns, two masked men held up and robbed a Baltimore & Ohio express train near Central, W. Va., and escaped with booty, including $500,000 in unassigned bills, which, it is declared, are legal tender.

The two men, after forcing the engineer and firemen to "split" their train, went about the task of rifling the mail car. They then started toward the Ohio river. Officers at the head of passes, are in hot pursuit.

The robber's haul is one of the largest ever recorded in the nation's history.

Looking over his shoulder Samuel Holmes, the engineer, saw two masked men climbing over the coal, each carrying an automatic shotgun.

One of the men ordered Holmes to cut off the engine and through mail from the remainder of the train and then stood by Holmes directing the distance he should run it. When two miles to the west had been covered, the highwaymen ordered Holmes to stop and climb down, while the fireman was compelled to do likewise.

Here the robbers went through the mail car.

HIGHER COURT GRANTS STAY

Appellate Court Issues Writ of Stay In Insurance Cases.

Frankfort, Ky. (Special): Complying with the prayer of the petitioners in the case of the Equitable Life Assurance Society of New York against Charles A. Hardin, circuit judge, and others, the appellate court granted a writ to stay the court from enforcing the order entered in the Lincoln circuit court in the case of James Robinson's administrator against the company.

Circuit Judge Hardin, in order to secure the evidence to arrive at the merits of the case, entered an order directing the officers and agents of the company to bring the papers, books and documents of the company from New York to be present at the hearings of the commissioners appointed by the court to take the evidence in the case.

The court did not pass on the merits of the case, but said that it would be unreasonable and too expensive to require the company to comply with the order, but that the commissioners should take the evidence as directed by the code.

REGULATORS DYNAMITE HOME

Two Men Dead and Another Injured as a Result of Raid.

Madisonville, Ky. (Special): Another dynamite raid was made here against the night marauders of western Kentucky, who style themselves "regulators."

A home was dynamited and as a result two men were dead and another injured. The scene was the dwelling of a family named Cathron, near Nortonville. Will Cathron, a son, was killed, and Will Purdue so badly injured that he died later. James Williams was injured slightly.

When Judge Fleming, of the Hopkinsville circuit court, received word of the deed he called the grand jury before him, giving special instructions regarding the investigation. Hopkins county has offered a reward of $200 for the apprehension of the assassins, and will ask the state to add the same amount.

Two Children Killed.

Louisville, Ky. (Special): A boy of ten and a child of four met violent deaths here within the space of half an hour. Chester Reiter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Valentine Reiter, was instantly killed at an East Louisville grade crossing when struck by an out-of-control C. & O. freight train. Wabutsky, four-year-old son of David Wabutsky, was killed on Preston street, near Broadway, twenty minutes later, when struck by a street car.

Scott Mayes, collector of internal revenue, recently to compromise charges of violations of the Harrison anti-narcotic law, raised his offer to $2,000 on condition that the cases against him be dropped.

Carr In Charge. Lexington, Ky. (Special): Frank B. Carr, general agent of the L. & N. in this city, has been placed in charge of the Lexington and Eastern terminal business in this city.

WILL CONTINUE HIS WARFARE

Gen. Villa Will Not Recognize Carranza.

BASIS OF A NEW POLICY

Object of Recognition of First Chief is to Establish Responsible Head of Government—Speculate on Attitude of Mexican Leader.

Washington, Oct. 11.—That Carranza is intent upon self-perpetuation in office has been made here for months, and the Villa agency in Washington has formally charged that the "first chief" contemplates nothing less than maintenance of himself in control of the supreme power in Mexico for an indefinite period.

The statement containing this charge was signed not only by Enrique Lorente, the Villa local agent, but M. Diaz Lombardo, the Villa secretary of state. It reads:

"Surely the conventional party will continue the struggle. Sooner or later it will demonstrate to the world that the Mexican people wish the establishment of a legal government and will not tolerate a dictatorship of indefinite tenure and inefficient administration, such as had been shown by Carranza's failure or unwillingness to organize a cabinet and suppress the frequent armed movements against his authority."

There is much speculation here as to what will be the attitude of Carranza toward the United States, now that he is to be recognized. The general opinion is that he will be more recalcitrant than ever before. Persons familiar with the Latin mind as to the Mexican problem. They do insist, however, that the extension of recognition to one of the factions gives the United States, as the government chiefly interested, a sort of handle by which it can grasp the Mexican situation.

Those holding this view profess to regard the recognition of Carranza, not as the termination of the Mexican trouble, but as the beginning of a solution of the problem of a new policy. Having recognized a government in Mexico, the United States, it is contended, can in the future hold that government to just as strict account as it considers necessary in all matters pertaining to the relations of the government of Mexico.

According to this view, it does not concern the United States whether Carranza establishes a dictatorship in Mexico or not, as long as he fulfills all the international obligations devolving upon him.

REGRETS LEAVING ITALY

Bulgarian Envoy Deplores Ending of Relations With Rome.

Rome, Oct. 11.—The Bulgarian minister to Italy who left for Bulgaria, gave out a statement to the press expressing Bulgaria's unanimous regret over the ending of relations between Bulgaria and Italy and pointing to Bulgaria's deep sympathy toward Italy, based upon kindred national aspirations.

The envoy's public statement is considered extremely significant here, inasmuch as it is believed to have been inspired by Germany, whose example in not declaring war on Italy will probably be followed by Bulgaria. The Bulgarian diplomat endeavored to delay his departure and did not ask for his passport, hoping the breaking off of the Italy-Bulgarian relations might be averted, but his departure was demanded by the foreign office.

HEAVY PANAMA CANAL SLIDES

Cargoes of Ships Are Being Transferred by Railroad.

Panama, Oct. 11.—One hundred and eleven steamships are held up on both sides of the Panama canal because of the recent slides and their cargoes are being transferred across the isthmus by rail. But the rush of business is so great that the railroad facilities are by no means sufficient to meet the demands and the transfer is progressing but slowly.

The slides are more serious than had at first been suspected, and it is certain that the channel cannot be opened for a month at the least, and possibly for three months. Three steamers laden with war supplies have turned around and resailed to Europe by the Suez canal.

SPECULATE OVER WEDDING DATE

Feag, Surprise by President and Mrs. Galt.

SOCIETY IS BUSY GUESSING

Uneasy Last Wedding Should Be Carried Out Suddenly at White House Without Announcement to End Flattering Attention of Public.

Washington, Oct. 11.—President Wilson and his fiancée, Mrs. Norman Galt, accompanied by the Misses Smith, distant relatives of the late Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, who are now guests of the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. McAdoo, made an automobile trip to Baltimore for a visit on the president's brother, Joseph Wilson, at his apartments, and to attend church with him at the Franklin Street Presbyterian church. Accompanying the president was a detachment of secret service men.

Considerable speculation was caused here by a change in the plans of the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. McAdoo. They were to have left on Friday for an official trip in the west. It was said at the White House that they were not going to New York or to Philadelphia with the president and his party. Then suddenly they appeared at Philadelphia with the Misses Smith and joined the presidential party at the ball game, returning with them and now have announced they will not leave on the western trip until early this week.

There has been some uneasiness among society leaders lest a wedding should be carried out suddenly in the White House circle without previous announcement. There had been a hint that the president and Mrs. McAdoo would appear in concert, did not return to the White House with her father and his party, nor did she join them for the game in Philadelphia. She will be engaged on her concert trip until Oct. 20. Secretary and Mrs. McAdoo, when they leave, will be absent three weeks, so speculators on the date of the wedding date seem reasonably certain that it will not be for at least three weeks from now.

On the other hand Mrs. Margaret Wilson, who has been constantly and very fervently to the aid of the Bulgarians to advance on these communications and to sever them, thus isolating Serbia and leaving it to the mercy of the German army on the north, but to the present moment there is no authoritative news that such an attempt has been started, or that one Bulgarian soldier has set foot on Serbian territory.

PROMISE CURE FOR DIABETES

Rockefeller Foundation Elaborates On an Old Treatment.

New York, Oct. 11.—A Cleveland dispatch, printed in a morning paper said that a "positive cure" for diabetes had been developed by the Rockefeller Foundation of Medical Research, and that the details are to be given in the next issue of the American Journal of Medical Science, which is published monthly in Philadelphia.

The "cure" was discovered as being based on bicarbonate of soda with a certain amount of salt, given hypodermically.

Inquiry at the Presbyterian hospital, which was stated to have used the new cure, brought information that the hospital has for some time been using in diabetes cases a treatment elaborated by a Dr. Allen of the Rockefeller institute's medical staff.

PISTOL DUEL OVER A COW

Argument Results In Shooting; Both Parties Wounded.

Vevay, Ind., Oct. 11.—Edgar Franklin, fifty years old, and Clyde Brock, forty, employees on dam No. 30 on the Ohio river, engaged in a pistol duel in the main street at Markland.

Brock was shot through the left thigh and a bullet passed through Franklin's right leg. The shooting followed an argument over a cow. The men went home and when they returned they met in front of a confectionery store. Franklin is said to have opened fire with a revolver and Brock replied with an automatic pistol, seven shots being fired.

Both men are married and have families. Franklin, who formerly was a steamboat mate on the Ohio river, owns considerable property.

BELGRADE IN TEUTON HANDS

Allies Continue to Rush Men to Aid of Serbia.

REPULSE TEUTON RIGHT WING

Serbians Hurl Kaiser's Army Back Across the Lower Drina, Inflicting Heavy Losses on Invaders—Artillery Actions in Belgium.

London, Oct. 11.—The fall of Belgrade is admitted by the Serbian war office at Nish, saying the right wing of the German army of invasion has been repulsed and thrown back across the Drina, with enormous losses. The statement says:

"Belgrade has fallen into the hands of the Germans after a desperate resistance. Fighting continues all along the Danube and Save fronts. The purpose of the enemy is to advance through the Moravia valley, separating Kostolac, thirty-eight miles southeast of Belgrade, from Dubravatz, on the Danube, thirty-five miles east of Belgrade, where his chief efforts are concentrated."

"The enemy suffered enormous losses in making unsuccessful attack on the lower Drina. The enemy has been thrown back on an island he occupied before opening operations."

An Athens dispatch says that the entente powers are landing fourteen thousand soldiers daily at Salonika and that they are being sent as rapidly as possible over the border railway into Serbia. Their exact destination is not known, but it is presumed that the major part of the forces already within Serbia territory are fortifying positions along the railroad to Nish.

The French communiqué was as follows:

"There were reciprocal artillery actions in Belgium in the environs of Lombaertide, and on the entire front in Artois. The exchanges between the German troops constantly and very fiercely contested in the region of Lisine and to the north of L'Avre."

"In Champagne we again progressed to the northeast of Tahure. A brilliant assault made us the masters of a German trench southeast of the village. On both sides the bombardment was intense."

"In the Argonne, in the sector of Courtes-Chausses, Elie Morte and between the Meuse and the Moselle to the north of Flirey, there were very violent battles with bombs and torpedoes, as well as in the Vages at Hartmannswillerkopf. A German aeroplane was brought down by one of our aviators. One of our squadrons dropped one hundred big bombs on the stations at the rear of the front in Champagne and on enemy troops, who had assembled there."

BOSTON PROMISES BIG CROWD

Excitement Prevails in Hub On Eve of Today's Game.

Boston, Oct. 11.—Boston has seen some very unusual baseball in its time. The Hub always has been a mecca for the great summer sport, even when major league representatives were cursed with lean standings. Yet Boston never before has been stored to such a keen tone of excitement as prevails on the eve of the third game between the Red Sox and Phillies for the great summer championship of the world. Nothing better could have been calculated to spur the zeal of Philadelphia.

Boston this year did not send out with Carrigan's entry as great a representation as usual when the town has been blessed with a chance for a world's championship pennant. This circumstance was not due to lack of interest. Supporters of the club who otherwise would have made the journey to Philadelphia were scared off by the reports of the scarcity of tickets.

Whichever pitcher may win the game will win before the largest crowd in baseball history.

CIRCUS DAY DRAWS NEAR

Barnum &amp; Bailey Show Will Arrive in City Next Friday, October 15.

One Performance Only To Be Given In Richmond

The elephants are coming! Look out for your horses! Next Friday, Oct. 15 is Barnum & Bailey day—better than the Fourth of July or Christmas for surprises and excitement. Interest in the event is at high pitch. Circus appetites are whetted to a razor edge. It will take no common feat to satisfy them.

The show is precisely as it was when it opened its season in Madison Square Garden, New York. It comes with the blessing of the 4,000,000 people of the metropolis, or at least as many of them as could crowd into the immense audience room every afternoon and night for many weeks.

It will arrive in Richmond on the longest train ever handled by any railroad. There is a string of cars over a mile in length. The train can be handled only by dividing it into five sections.

The first event of interest after the unloading is the parade. It will take place at 10 o'clock in the forenoon. It is

"I was weak and nervous and dizzy," she said, "any sudden noise made my heart beat so fast it frightened me. I had nervous headaches. Whenever I walked upstairs it left me almost exhausted."

My stomach was weak and my food did not agree with me. If I ate anything solid it made me miserable. I was told that I had catarrh of the stomach, but the medicines I took did me no good until friends suggested Tanlac to me. I'm glad now that I took their advice.

"It was almost no time until I felt better, and now I can eat whatever I please. I owe it all to Tanlac. My nerves are in good shape again, and no longer have palpitation of the heart. Tanlac is the only medicine that ever helped me. I can't say too much in praise of it."

Tanlac is now being sold in Richmond by H. L. Perry's Drug store. adv.

General Lee's Horse

"If I were an artist like you," wrote Gen. Robert E. Lee, to a friend, "I would draw a true picture of Traveller—representing his fine proportions, muscular figure, deep chest and short strong haunches, flat legs, small head, broad forehead, delicate ears, quick eyes and black main and tail. Such a picture would inspire a poet, whose genius could then describe his endurance, he could dilate upon his sagacity and affection and his invincible response to every wish of his rider. He might even imagine his thoughts, through the long night marches and days of battle through which he passed. But I am no artist; I can only say he is a confederate gray. I purchased him in the mountains of Virginia in the autumn of 1861, and he has been my patient follower ever since, to Georgia, the Carolinas and back to Virginia. He carried me through the seven days around Richmond, the Second Manassas at Sharpsburg, Frederickburg, the last days at Chancellorsville, to Pennsylvania, at Gettysburg and back to the Rappahannock."

From the commencement of the campaign in 1864 till its close, around a world-beater in the way of pageantry. It ought to be, for it cost the management over $1,000,000. The performances here will doubtless be given to capacity crowds, as every indication points to a general deserting of homes in farmside and village for a radius of a hundred miles or more. Only one performance will be given in Richmond, at 2:15 p. m.

Railroad officers look for the biggest circus crowd the town has handled and are making preparations accordingly. For the benefit of those who wish to avoid the jam around the ticket wagons the management of the circus will conduct a branch box-office in Stockton's Drug Store.

It will open early in the morning of show day. Reserved seats and admissions can be bought there at the regular prices.

Just 480 artists will give the performance. They come from every land under the sun.

This is the circus that has amazed the inhabitants of every city in the world with its gorgeous displays. The performances to be given here will be the same as those which delighted New York City when the circus opened in Madison Square Garden on April 1st. Not a detail has been changed since then. New York is the metropolitan home of the show. For fifty years the main offices have been located there, though agencies are also maintained in London, Liverpool, Paris, Berlin, St. Petersburg, Teheran, Vienna, Hamburg, Naples, Constantinople, Calcutta, Hong Kong, Cape Town, Melbourne and Buenos Ayres. The winter quarters are at Bridgeport, Conn., and the foreign workshops are located near Liverpool, England. The advertisement distributing depot is in Chicago.

GET BUSY.

We reproduce the following from the last issue of the Kentucky Register of this city:

"Hypocrites."

"This widely advertised photoplay, which has created a stir in the country, was shown at the Alhambra Theatre in this city last Friday. We attended the performance, and found as we had surmised, that its supposed wickedness was merely an advertising scheme on the part of the film producers to draw the crowd. It was just like an actress having her jewels stolen on purpose, or any of the well known professional dodges, used by theatrical managers for purpose of publicity. The picture itself was a beautiful production, and, offended our moral sense not at all. We saw nothing harmful in it, but on the contrary it taught a high moral lesson, which all would do well to take to heart. It plainly showed up the hypocrisy that exists to-day in church, state, and society, and in all the walks of life. We are all more or less hypocrites, and hypocrisy is the most common of all sins. A powerful picture holding up so dramatically one of our most every day faults, cannot fail to do good and cause us to resolve to mend our ways. Miss Ward is to be congratulated on affording the community the opportunity of seeing this sermon on the screen. As a matter of fact it was not half so suggestive as many of the ordinary films shown over the country every day, and concerning which nothing is said. Anyhow when it comes down to cases, 'Evil to him who evil thinketh.' One can make harm out of anything."

Our young friend is mistaken. The people are not all hypocrites. While we all may not live up to the ideal life and cannot reach the perfection of Christ, still it is a slander of the vilest kind to attribute to the world the character of hypocrisy. The word "Hypocrite" is a term applied to a member of a church and denotes "deceit; a hypocrite feigns to be what he is not; a dissembler conceals what he is; the former pretends to virtues which he has not;" the latter conceals the vices which he has." This is the definition given in the standard Webster's Dictionary.

Thus the Register cordially approves a vile picture which libels himself, father, mother, wife, children and the whole community. We have no quarrel to pick with our brother editor. Our relations have always been of the kindest and happiest nature and they will continue to be. We accord to him the privilege of his belief, the cabdriver of his expression and the genuineness of his commendations of the picture "Hypocrites." We regret that he differs from us so radically. We believe his views are egregiously wrong.

And now as to the charge contained in his editorial that the pictures are no worse than those that are shown here every day and about which nothing has been said. In this, he is again mistaken. Time after time have we remonstrated against the showing of lewd and lascivious pictures. The pulpit has been the city. The legislative body of the city, to wit: the Council has put its emphatic protest in the form of a city law against the showing of such pictures. It is a fine to do so. (We assisted the Honorable City Attorney in preparing that ordinance.) We are not devotees of the picture shows and rarely ever attend them. If it is true as charged, that the pictures commonly and continually given, are vulgar and obscene, then the administration of the city should get busy and root them out. An outraged public should raise a hue and cry and see that the laws are enforced against them. It is a crime against childhood to allow them to continue to debauch and destroy innocence and virtue. The picture shows properly run can be made things of enjoyment and benefit to the community. However, if they are run as the Register and others say they are, then they are a curse and should be suppressed. (We leave it to the devotees of the shows to determine for themselves whether or not they go daily to witness vulgar shows.)

We notice the thrust "Evil to him that evil thinketh" and we respond that there are other aphorisms equally in point to wit: "There are none so blind as those who wish not to see; none so deaf as those who wish not to hear." And also a provincialism, "You can not destroy the odor of a dead cat by sprinkling the body with rose water."

"Hypocrites" taught no moral lesson. It was merely the commonplace, vulgar picture, libelous in its teachings, an assault on the splendid womanhood and manhood of the age and destructive of the power and influence of the church over innocent children.

In our editorial, we made no attack on the Alhambra theatre nor on the people who attend it. There was not an unkind word said about any one. It was a critique on the picture, "Hypocrites" a picture that has attracted national attention. It was couched in dignified language and on an elevated plane. On this connection, allow us to say that the advertisers in this paper can not control its policies. Nor can they dictate to us the kind of editorials we write. Still further, they can not command us to praise that which we think should be denounced.

Cannel City Dye Works.

Production of 10,000 pounds of dye a day to relieve the dye famine in this country occasioned by the war in Europe, which prevents shipment from Germany, the big dye producing country of the world, is the ambitious program of the Cannel City Dye Works. Dyes of the highest grade have been produced in the laboratories of the new company, but the plant which will consist of furnaces, oil distilleries, dye houses and laboratories, will not be completed until about November 1, when the officials hope to increase their daily production to 10,000 pounds.

On The Motor Car.

A school girl was required to write an essay of 250 words about a motor car. She submitted the following: "My uncle bought a motor car. He was riding in the country when it busted up a hill. I guess this is about fifty words. The other 200 words are what my uncle said when he was walking back to town, but they are not fit for publication."—Masonic Observer.

Church Notes

Next Sunday morning is "Church Family Day," when every member of the family is invited to be present, and each family sit together. The sermon will be appropriate to the day and the season of the year, "The Fading Leaf." We hope to see a large number of our older members present.

Sunday night will be "Student's Night." All students in the city are cordially invited, those of Caldwell High School as well as those of the Normal School.

Our prayer meeting is adjourned this week on account of the Synod.

Mrs. J. W. Zaring on last Sunday presented to Mr. William S. Broadus a handsome bible as a testimonial of her esteem. He has been a faithful pupil in her bible class at the Christian Sunday School, was always prompt in attendance and took great interest in the class. Mrs. Zaring was very happy in her remarks and the presentation was an affecting scene. Mr. Broadus was almost overcome by the unexpected and gracious act of his beloved teacher and was warm in his expressions of appreciation.

Mr. S. S. Parks.

A number of Mr. S. S. Parks' friends in the masonic fraternity of this city, gave him a surprise birthday dinner in the Masonic Temple last Monday night, Oct. 11, of October. It was his eighty-sixth birthday.

Judge Shackelford presided as toastmaster and was in his usual happy vein. His introduction of the various speakers of the evening was in keeping with the occasion.

Hon. W. L. Crutcher was the first speaker of the day and he gave many pleasant reminiscences of the life of the honored guest. (His speech will appear in full next week.)

Hon. L. B. Herrington, Mr. R. R. Burman and Dr. Telford, handled their themes ably and to the pleasure of their auditors.

Mr. Parks' response touched every heart by its sweetness and strength. Mr. S. S. Parks numbers his friends by his acquaintances and to know him is to love him. Kindly in his nature, of pleasant address and courteous manner, he impresses those with whom he comes in contact most favorably and leaves them his friends. For many years he has been one of the leading financiers and his opinions are sought and given due consideration by the people. He is sympathetic, kind and always delights in helping the needy but he dispenses his charity quietly and without ostentation. It has been said of him that his foot prints can be found wherever there is distress or need of help. By his example he preaches daily to the people.

For over forty two years he has been the treasurer of Richmond Lodge and this position he will hold for life.

The evening was a happy one and those who attended it will hold it long in memory.

FRANK BEATTY

Found Dead on L. & N. Railroad Near This City.

The lifeless body of Mr. Frank Beatty, a well known young man of this city, was found by the flagman on the 610 train Sunday morning lying by the side of the L. & N. tracks about three miles north of town. According to reports, Mr. Beatty was seen at Vandevere's store on East Irvine street and close to the L. & N. tracks at a late hour Saturday night. When his body was found Sunday morning by the train crew nobody recognized him, and the officers of this city were notified. Upon reaching the scene and making an examination the identity of the man became known. Squire Wm Adams summoned a jury and held an inquest over the remains at the undertaking establishment of Oldham & Lackey, in this city. From the nature of the case and the evidence produced, it is a certainty the unfortunate man was killed by a train some time during the early morning hour. How he came to be at the location where found, is wrapped in mystery and will probably never be known.

The victim's skull was crushed on the left side, face badly bruised and several abrasions on skin, right side badly bruised and back broken. The remains were viewed by a number of persons at the undertaking establishment of Oldham & Lackey Sunday morning. The body was prepared for burial and removed to the home of his parents on Smith-Ballard street late in the afternoon.

Mr. Beatty was about 35 years of age and the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Beatty. For several years he was a salesman in the clothing store of J. S. Stanifer, but for the past year had been employed by the Normal City Laundry. He was an unassuming, inoffensive, polite and courteous gentleman, and had many friends. He is survived by his father and mother, two brothers and one sister, all of whom have the deepest sympathy of a legion of friends in their bereavement. Funeral services were conducted at his late home Monday afternoon at 8 o'clock, after which the remains were laid to rest in the Richmond Cemetery.

Wrist Broken
Sunday afternoon when returning from Whitlock, where he had been in attendance at a big baptizing, Mr. June Baxter, our efficient Supervisor of County Roads, had the misfortune to have his wrist broken. Just this side of Whitlock a young lady hailed Mr. Baxter and asked for a ride to town which,
of course, was readily granted by the gallant gentleman. When he stopped his car the engine went dead. Mr. Baxter assisted the young lady and baggage in the car and proceeded to crank his Ford car, which gave a sudden start and the crank flew back and struck him on the wrist, breaking it. Mr. Baxter came to the city and had his wounds dressed, which have been very painful.
His many friends regret to hear of his misfortune.

H. H. Colyer Appointed.
At a recent meeting of the Democratic County Committee, Mr. H. H. Colyer, one of the best known men in Madison county, was elected Chairman of the Campaign Committee, which he has graciously accepted. Mr. Jennings Maupin was chosen secretary. Mr. Colyer has chosen as his Campaign Committee
the following named gentlemen: Mr.
W. A. Langford, Judge W. R. Shackelford,
Hon. L. B. Herrington, John H.
Rice, Messrs. B. B. Terrill, John C. Nolan, C. F. Higgins, L. P. Evans, and Thomas Pickels. This is a splendid selection. These gentlemen are all democrats as pure as crystal and will give zest to the party in the city and county, and when the polls close on election day in November, a large majority vote will be gilled up for Baxter, our efficient Chairman of the entire Democratic ticket. Headquarters have been opened in Governor McCreary's office on Second street, where the democrats will always receive a hearty welcome.

An English Topcoat of Cravenetted Tweed

THIS is a season of topcoats, and the materials used for them are as varied as the designers are similar. This model is what the English call a slip-on coat, and the material is imported cravenetted mixed tweed in gray or brown coloring. It makes a very suitable storm coat because it has the advantage of a very high collar, which may be buttoned up to the chin.

RICHMOND

Enjoying An Era of Great Prosperity According To L. & N. Statement.

We have always contended that Richmond was the best inland town in the State of Kentucky, despite the protests of a few "knockers" who never did anything since our acquaintance with them except "knock on the town. Now to those who persist in knocking on the good old town, we would say you are engaged in a most mental occupation, and should get out of the mire and not throw mud at your town and everybody. We have, like all other towns, a bevy of professional loafers and "knockers" who really do not know and realize what is going on about them. They sit around and gossip and in their course of conversation will talk about the great prosperity, glory and grandeur of other towns but none ever moves to one of these prosperity towns of which they've been hearin' so much about. When a stranger enters our portals and drops a kindly word about our town, these "knockers" get out their hammers and begin to drive home what they think are center shots and, of course, their hammering annoys the stranger within our gates and he often leaves in disgust.
When the stranger departs, these little shrimps get together and have a big pow-wow among themselves. What a pity that a "knocker" was ever born.
The "knockers" may knock, but nevertheless, Richmond is enjoying an era of prosperity despite the little school of calamity howlers about the town. We have heard much about the prosperity and progress of other towns, and we have visited several of them, but we can truthfully and frankly say that Richmond is as good as far better than the most of them. It is a true saying,
"Cattle away off have a fully long horns." As with cattle, so with towns.
The best criterion by which to judge the prosperity of a city or town is to your railway station and ascertain the amount of freight being handled at that place. A few days since while in conversation with our hustling and accommodating local agent, Mr. Jonas Rucker, of the L. & N. Railroad, he gave us an itemized statement of the number of cars of merchandise received for Richmond during the month of September, 1915. We must confess that the number received amazed and astonished us.
It was more than double what we had roughly estimated. Here is the pumber as furnished us by Mr. Rucker:
Coal, 50 cars; shingles, 2 cars; lumber, 19 cars; nails, 2 cars; cattle, 63 cars;
pickles, 1 car; oil and gasoline, 7 cars;
tobacco hogsheds and hoops, 2 cars;
fertilizer, 5 cars; brick, 7 cars; sand, 8
cars; furniture, 3 cars; hay, 9 cars; corn, 1 car; mules, 2 cars; lard, 1 car; salt, 3 cars; concrete stone, 4 cars; plaster, 2 cars; cement, 5 cars; lime, 1 car; fence, 2 cars; automobiles, 2 cars; bones and iron, 1 car, sheep, 5 cars; wheat, 20 cars; sugar, 2 cars; rye, 1 car; machinery, 1 car; iron, 2 cars.

The above figures show a total of 219
car loads of freight received in this city during the month of September, and this in addition to 8 car loads received daily by local freights working at platform. The average number of car loads received daily by local freight was 8, making a total for the month of 240
cars, which added to the above figures, makes a grand total of 459 car loads of freight received here during the month of September, which shows an era of great prosperity prevailing in Richmond.
The passenger business was also good during the month of September, reaching far into the thousands.

united with the Methodist church at this place in 1842, and he gives in his letter the hymn that was sung at the time, "Plunged in a Gulf of Dark Despair." Mr. Payne states that he would like to see Nicholasville once more, but

and ten, there is a single reminder here that would take him back to his boy-hood days.—Jessamine News.

all opposition before her and won the $14,000 stake in straight heats under the able handling of Dick Mahon. Not only did she outdistance the harness stars in this race, but she established a new world's record for three year-olds, winning the last heat in 2:05 1/2. Mary Putney was bred on the Walnut Hall

FAMOUS OLD HERNDON FARM

containing 341 acres, Good Blue Grass Land, handsomely improved with commodious Brick Residence surrounded by pretty shade trees, in a beautiful lawn, and every necessary outbuilding, three Stock Barns and Silo, two Tenant Houses, Grainery, Ice House, Stock Scales, etc. The land is clean and in high state of cultivation, and all building and fences are in first-class condition. This farm is a magnificent Grass and Tobacco farm, and abundantly watered, making it an ideal Stock Farm. It has a long frontage on the Kingston pike, about twelve miles from Richmond, and about three miles from Berea, Ky., at which latter city is located the justly celebrated BERE A COLLEGE for boys and girls, thus offering, almost at the door, the very best educational, physical, social and moral training for both boys and girls, while they are kept at home under the eye of the parent, than which nothing can be more desirable to the man with a family to educate. There is no more healthy community anywhere. In a word, we can recommend this farm as one of the most desirable homes, and one of the best money makers in the famous Blue Grass section of Kentucky. Railroad depot within two miles of farm.

We will make unusually easy terms, asking only one-fifth cash, and the balance in notes payable on or before five years from date, with six per cent interest, payable semi-annually, and secured by Vendor's lien retained on the land. We will first offer the farm in three tracts of 84, 100 and 157 acres respectively, and then as a whole, and the high dollar will buy it.

Hard on Auto Owners. Oil then all over the county claim that by next summer, unless something unusual happens, gasoline will reach fifty cents a gallon. There are 2,000,000 automobiles and the number is rapidly increasing. Each car at present averages 2 gallons a day. For this purpose it is said that 7,500,000 gallons of gasoline are consumed daily in the United States. The Mexican war situation is said to be largely responsible for the present increase in price, as this country has been cut off from the great supply of oil formerly furnished by the Mexican fields, which are among the most productive in the world.

OLD FAVORITES.

THE HAND THAT RULES THE WORLD.
THEY say that man is mighty, he governs land and sea;
He wields a mighty scepter o'er lesser powers that be;
By a mightier power and stronger man
from his throne is hurled;
And the hand that rocks the cradle is the hand that rules the world.

BLESSINGS on the hand of woman!
Angels guard its strength and grace,
In the palace, cottage, hovel—oh, no matter
where the place!
Would that never storms assailed it,
rainbows ever gently curled,
For the hand that rocks the cradle is the
hand that rules the world.

INFANCY'S tender fountain, power
may with beauty flow;
Mother's first to guide the streamlets,
From their souls investing grow;
Grow on for the good or evil, sunshine
streamed or darkness lurked,
For the hand that rocks the cradle is the
hand that rules the world.

WOMAN, how divine your mission here
upon our natal soil!
Keep, oh, keep, the young heart open always to the breath of God!
All true trophies of the ages are from mother love imperiled,
For the hand that rocks the cradle is the
hand that rules the world.

BLESSINGS on the hand of woman!
Fathers, sons and daughters cry,
And the sacred song is mingled with the chorus in the sky—
Mingles where no tempest darkens, rainbows evermore are curied,
For the hand that rocks the cradle is the
hand that rules the world.

REMEMBRANCE.
MY mind lets go a thousand things Like dates of wars and deaths of kings,
And yet recalls the very hour;
'Twas noon by yonder village tower,
And on the last blue noon in May
The wind came briskly up the way,
Crisping the brook beside the road;
Then, pausing here, set down its load
Of pine accents and shook listlessly
Two petals from that wild rose tree.
—Thomas Bailey Aldrich.

FAREWELL TO HIS WIFE.
FARE thee well, and if forever,
Still forever, fare thee well!
Even though unforgiving, never
'Gainst thee shall my heart rebel!

Would that breast were bare before thee
Where thy love went to find its pain,
While that placid sleep came o'er thee
Which thou'lt ne'er e'er canst know again!

Would that breast, by thee glanced over,
Every inmost thought could show!
Then thou wouldst know, believe me,
'Twas not well to spurn it so.

Though the world for this commend thee,
Though it smile upon the blow,
Even its praises must offend thee,
Founded on another's woe!

Though my many faults defaced me,
Could no other arm be found
Than the one which once embraced me
To inflict a cureless wound?

Yet, oh, yet, thyself deceive not;
Love may sink by slow decay,
But by sudden wrench, believe not Hearts can thus be torn away.

Still things own its life retaining—
Still must mine, though bleeding, beat,
And the undying thought which paineth
Is—that we no more may meet.

These are words of deeper sorrow
Than the wall above the dead;
Both shall live, but every morning
Wake us from a widowed bed.

And when thou wouldst solace gather,
When her lip to thine is pressed,
Think of him whose prayer shall bless Thee, and thy love had blessed!

Should her lineaments resemble
Those thou netherworld mayst see,
Then thy heart will softly tremble
With a pulse yet true to me.

All my faults perchance thou knowest,
All my madness none can know;
All my hopes, where'er thou goest,
Wither, yet with thee they go.

Every feeling hath been shaken,
Pride, which not a world could bow,
Bows to thee, by thee forsaken,
Even my soul forsakes me now.

But 'tis done; all words are idle—
Words from me are vainest still,
But the thoughts we can not bribe Force their way without the will.

Fare thee well! Thus disunited,
Torn from every nearer tie,
Seared in heart and lone and blighted,
More than this I scarce—Lord Byron.

IN THE BUD.
YOU'D scarce expect one of my age
To speak in public on the stage;
And if I chance to fall below
Demosthenes or Cicero
Don't view me with a critic's eye,
But pass my imperfections by.
Large streams from little fountains
flow,
Tall oaks from little acorns grow.
—David Everett.

WORD YOU NEVER SPOKE.
PROUD word you never spoke, but yet
will speak
For not exempt from pride some future
day,
Resting on one white hand a warm wet
cheek
Over my open volume you will say,
'This man loved me!' then rise and trip away.
—Walter Savage Landor.

TAKE JOY HOME.
"TAKE joy home, and make a place in thy great heart for her,
And give her time to grow and cherish
her;
Then will she come and oft will sing to thee,
When thou art working in the furrows
aye,
Or wedding in the sacred hour of dawn.
It is a comely thing to be glad,
Joy is the grace we say to God."
—Jean Ingelow.

What Causes Tuberculosis?

HERE can be no tuberculosis without the germ, the tubercle bacillus. Whether the disease appears in the lungs, in the hand, in the hips, or in the eye, it is the same germ that always causes it.

Looking at it from another way, however, the germ of tuberculosis can never cause the disease unless the soil has been prepared for
it. It is as if the germ were the seed and the body were the soil.
You cannot raise wheat on a hard, cobblestone pavement nor can you grow corn on a boardwalk. Neither can you grow tuberculosis from the tiny plant-like germ which causes the disease, on a soil which is hard and resistant. The tissues of the body in which the disease is to develop must first be weakened and made flabby and prepared for the growth of the disease somewhat as the farmer prepares his soil before sowing his seed.

What are the causes that prepare the soil for the growth of tuberculosis germs in the body? There are first of all, a group of causes which lie within the individual himself, which we may call personal causes. Some of them may be controlled by the individual and some of them are beyond his control. Take such causes, for example, as intemperance, lack of proper food, a weakened physical condition caused by gripe, colds, pneumonia, measles, typhoid fever, etc.—these are some of the personal causes which prepare the soil for the tuberculous seed. Then there is also another group of causes which are entirely outside of the individual and which we may designate as environmental or social causes. Some of these are, for example, bad living and working conditions, lack of play and recreation facilities, unclean streets, etc.

These two groups of causes may either separately or altogether, act upon one so that his normal strength and vitality, which we call resistance, is lowered and he readily becomes a prey to the disease germs which are constantly lurking about and which he may be harboring in his body without knowing it. Let us consider some of these causes a little more in detail.

Of the personal causes that lead to tuberculosis, probably intemperance may be reckoned as one of the most important. By intemperance is meant everything in the way of self-indulgence that injures the body. One may be intemperate in eating and by partaking of too much food may produce permanent digestive disturbance which weakens the bodily resistance. One may be intemperate in the use of drugs or in other ways, thereby weakening the bodily resistance.
The most frequent form of intemperance, however, is the use of intoxicating liquors. Any man who drinks beer, wine or whiskey to excess is preparing the soil of his lungs for the seed of tuberculosis.
This is the reason why the mortality from tuberculosis among men and women who are accustomed to drink is so high, much higher according to reliable statistics than among people who do not use intoxicating liquors.

Many children from the time they are born into the world are doomed to starvation. Other people because they like candy, pie, and cake better than meat, bread and vegetables, are starving themselves willfully. This underfeeding or lack of proper food will as surely prepare the soil for tuberculosis as if one deliberately set out to do so.

What Causes Tuberculosis?

HERE can be no tuberculosis without the germ, the tubercle
bacillus. Whether the disease appears in the lungs, in the hand, in the hips, or in the eye, it is the same germ that always causes it.

Looking at it from another way, however, the germ of tuberculosis can never cause the disease unless the soil has been prepared for
it. It is as if the germ were the seed and the body were the soil.
You cannot raise wheat on a hard, cobblestone pavement nor can you grow corn on a boardwalk. Neither can you grow tuberculosis from the tiny plant-like germ which causes the disease, on a soil which is hard and resistant. The tissues of the body in which the disease is to develop must first be weakened and made flabby and prepared for the growth of the disease somewhat as the farmer prepares his soil before sowing his seed.

What are the causes that prepare the soil for the growth of tuberculosis germs in the body? There are first of all, a group of causes which lie within the individual himself, which we may call personal causes. Some of them may be controlled by the individual and some of them are beyond his control. Take such causes, for example, as intemperance, lack of proper food, a weakened physical condition caused by gripe, colds, pneumonia, measles, typhoid fever,
etc.—these are some of the personal causes which prepare the soil for the tuberculous seed. Then there is also another group of causes which are entirely outside of the individual and which we may designate as environmental or social causes. Some of these are, for example, bad living and working conditions, lack of play and recreation facilities, unclean streets, etc.

These two groups of causes may either separately or altogether,
act upon one so that his normal strength and vitality, which we call resistance, is lowered and he readily becomes a prey to the disease germs which are constantly lurking about and which he may be harboring in his body without knowing it. Let us consider some of these causes a little more in detail.

Of the personal causes that lead to tuberculosis, probably intemperance may be reckoned as one of the most important. By intemperance is meant everything in the way of self-indulgence that injures the body. One may be intemperate in eating and by partaking
of too much food may produce permanent digestive disturbance which weakens the bodily resistance. One may be intemperate in the use of drugs or in other ways, thereby weakening the bodily resistance.
The most frequent form of intemperance, however, is the use of intoxicating liquors. Any man who drinks beer, wine or whiskey to excess is preparing the soil of his lungs for the seed of tuberculosis.
This is the reason why the mortality from tuberculosis among men and women who are accustomed to drink is so high, much higher
according to reliable statistics than among people who do not use intoxicating liquors.

Many children from the time they are born into the world are doomed to starvation. Other people because they like candy, pie, and cake better than meat, bread and vegetables, are starving themselves willfully. This underfeeding or lack of proper food will as surely prepare the soil for tuberculosis as if one deliberately set out to do so.

Many people have a notion that if they have apparently recovered from a bad cold or an attack of gripe or pneumonia, there is no further danger and they are perfectly safe. Oftentimes the most dangerous period in an acute disease is during the few weeks immediately after the patient is able to be up and about. It is during this time of convalescence that the seeds of disease will find a sure root if special care is not taken. Fresh air, good food, rest, and right living are the best safeguards against tuberculosis during a time such as this. T. After-effects of many diseases can be avoided if the patient will continue to persist in taking care of himself just the same as he did when he was in the bed and under the doctor's orders.
Then there are those causes of tuberculosis which are entirely outside of the individual such as bad housing conditions. Dark rooms where the sun never shines are among the best breeding places possible for the germs of tuberculosis. Here they thrive in great quantities and it is almost impossible to dislodge them. Dark, filthy hallways, unclean sinks, and dirty backyards and toilets are also menaces to the health of those who live near them. Many a man can improve these conditions with a little effort if he will take the time to do so.
More often, however, it is the landlord's fault that the housing conditions are not better.

Low wages, long hours of work, dark unventilated factory rooms, excessive heat, and dusty occupations are only a few of the conditions which make it easy for the seed of tuberculosis to attack the working man. The lack of proper places for play and recreation, which makes a man go to the saloon at night instead of into the park or playground, is a social cause leading to tuberculosis. These social causes can be fought only by the united effort of the men and women of the community. Individuals can help but it takes all shoulders at the wheel to produce effective results.

In conclusion, remember that the soil must be right before the seed of tuberculosis can grow, and that you can contribute much towards keeping the soil of your body in such condition that no germs will find a root there.

way she has been.

At twenty-five a man used to begin to live, but a woman was on the shelf. Up to a few decades ago the woman of twenty-five, married or single, was usually passed. If married she forswore romance and spent her days in dull and commendable faithfulness to "kinder, kirche, kueche;" if unmarried and minus an independent income, heaven help her! She passed gently into the maiden aunt stage—household helper in general to any married sister, brother, cousin that ever wanted her; subject to call when there was illness, dire need, a new baby or bustling preparations for some important event; to take errors and omissions meekly and without complaint. Sometimes she persisted in being young even at twenty-seven and curled her hair and squeaked her voice to a childish treble and trained in a set of kitchenish manners for social purposes. She hated to give up the thought of ever being married.

Woman's Enlarging Sphere.

At twenty-five a man used to begin to live, but a woman was on the shelf. Up to a few decades ago the woman of twenty-five, married or single, was usually passed. If married she forswore romance and spent her days in dull and commendable faithfulness to "kinder, kirche, kueche;" if unmarried and minus an independent income, heaven help her! She passed gently into the maiden aunt stage—household helper in general to any married sister, brother, cousin that ever wanted her; subject to call when there was illness, dire need, a new baby or bustling preparations for some important event; to take errors and omissions meekly and without complaint. Sometimes she persisted in being young even at twenty-seven and curled her hair and squeaked her voice to a childish treble and trained in a set of kitchenish manners for social purposes. She hated to give up the thought of ever being married.

And here's her twentieth century substitute who is an undeveloped child under twenty-five. She is perfectly willing to marry, but she has plenty of interests to occupy her if she doesn't. Moreover, she has plenty of interests in addition to home and family when she does marry.

For there is one thing that business and professional interests have done for the modern woman which makes them beyond price—that have protracted youth and deferred matrimony to an age indefinitely. Business and professional life do for women what they have done for men. It takes a man about ten years to put a business on his feet, but a woman can do it in five. It takes a man about ten years to put a business on his feet, but a woman can do it in five.

Woman's life used to be mainly retrospective. Before the war she was already engaged in the gentle occupation of rearing again and again her youthful experiences and conquests. The modern woman with an occupation looks ahead. The past is to her only a foundation, and her days are filled with planning for next month, next year and ten years ahead.

Sandwiches and Sandwich Fillings. Honey Sandwich.—Spread thin slices of bread with very thick honey that will not run readily; spread other side with butter stirred with cream. Press one slice of each together and cut into fancy shapes if something tasty is desired for an afternoon tea.

Baked Bean Sandwich.—Reduce the beans to a pulp (red kidney beans preferred). Mix pulp with melted butter, onion juice, a pinch of dry mustard, a few olives or pimientos chopped and dash of tomato ketchup or chili sauce. Spread the mixture between slices of brown bread. Chili sauce is generally used.

Deviled Ham Sandwiches.—To make deviled ham chop very fine one pint of boiled ham (more fat than lean), six hard boiled eggs, one teaspoonful of mustard (the made kind), season and press in a mold. This will keep for weeks and is a good filling for sandwiches.

Fillings for sandwiches are numerous and nearly always on hand. First there come the sweet fillings, such as creamy fudges of all kinds, marshmallow cream, chocolate cream, cream, maple fudge, caramel fudge, candied ginger as a garnish for outside of sandwiches, also as a filling; raisins chopped and mixed with fudge or chopped and mixed with butter, etc. They make a good filling. They do not attack digestion quite so harshly when used in this manner and may be used between crackers, cookies or bread with good results and are always liked by those who use them. Second come the cheese fillings. American cheese and Swiss cheese, and they may be cut wafer thin and served in many ways with pimientos on buttered bread. Nuts and raisins are popular with cheese fillings as are also the meat, chicken and vegetable fillings.

Darning Hint.

When darning run the thread around the heel first draw the hole up until the edges lie flat on the darning. The hole will seem much smaller, and the darn can be made more satisfactorily.

SEEING LIFE with JOHN HENRY & George V. Hobart

John Henry On Vanity

AY! have you ever noticed that the bug called Vanity can cook up more trouble for human beings than any germ that ever built its nest in a brain cell?

It's a subtle little disease, this fever we call Vanity. No man ever knows he has it but he can always recognize the symptoms in his neighbor.

Sometimes it breaks out in diamond rings on the fingers; sometimes it takes the form of ragtime clothing accompanied by rainbow neckties, and sometimes it drives a man into politics who should remain at his post as the chauffeur of a garbage wagon.

And then again there are occasions when it never shows in a man until after he is dead and his will reads, "I give and bequeath the sum of thirty thousand dollars for the purposes of scattering my ashes from the highest peak of the Himalaya mountains."

Hep Hardy has it for keeps. Around at the club the other night I saw him drink seven Scotch highballs because somebody swore him all up by telling him he never showed the effects of liquor.

Then he had to lean against the buildings all the way home. Even friend wife isn't proof against the vanity microbe.

Not long ago some fresh friend told her that she was getting stout and Peaches promptly fell for every obesity cure known to modern science. Ding her calmer moments Peaches has the general appearance of a Fletchering canary bird, but when some amiable idiot told her that day by day she was growing to look more and more like a public building she uttered a few shrill screams and started after that obnoxious proposition with a tomahawk.

I tried to flag her and talk her out of it, but she waved me back and said she wasn't going through this world chaperoning a double chin.

So Peaches started in to put the sabots to the fatty tissues, and for a week our erstwhile peaceful home became two reels in the Movies entitled "A Rough Night at Sea."

When I reached home on the eve of the Battle of Emboupoint I found Peaches strolling around the campus made up to look like a lady scarecrow. Her face was concealed behind a muslin mask, there was a feverish glitter in her eyes and in both hands she clutched a book which proclaimed itself "The Road to Beauty," or, How to Get Thin Without Calling in the Coroner.

As I breezed through the turnstile with a cheery "Good evening, Lassie," she turned her astylenic lamps on me and burned me to a standstill. Then she threw both herself and the book on our nearly-Persian rug and began to roll around the room. Seek-river and going hard when a strap broke, whereupon Peaches went overboard with a splash that upset most of the furniture in the room and knocked her manicure set down behind the bureau.

One of the oars went up in the air whaled on the bridge of my nose, because my face happened to be in the way when the oar came down.

When loving hands finally untangled Peaches from the chain drive of a rocking chair, she found that, with the help of the rowing machine, she had lost nearly two pounds—mostly off the end of her elbow.

A day or two later Mrs. Fitzstanz, who tips the beam at 243, flopped in like an amiable seal and told Peaches that her system of physical culture was all wrong. Once more I hotfooted it for the shopping district and returned with one of those rubber contrivances which you carefully fasten to the wall, and then take hold of the handles and try to pull it off again.

Bright and early the next morning Peaches grabbed the handles and was getting away from her fat little self at the rate of an ounce an hour when one of the rubber strings suddenly quit the job and then something kicked Peaches just where a good singer gets her coloratura.

When Peaches fell wounded on the field of battle she decided hurriedly that something must fall with her so she selected one of her new talking machine records and there was such a crash that our new cook thought the end of the world had arrived and she ran screaming in the direction of Paterson, N. J.

I had to pour a pitcher of ice water over Peaches' facial expression before she came to, and then she found that all she had lost by the new process was her breath and $24 worth of records.

She was sitting on a Caruso, with her left foot embedded in a Tetraxini while fragments of a Victor Herbert medley nestled coyly in her hair.

Mrs. Gadsby dropped in next day about lunch time and told Peaches that the only real way to reduce the flesh is to take a long walk; so Peaches picked out a long walk and took it. After she was gone about six hours, and it was getting dark she called me up on the long distance and broke the news to me that she had walked some fifteen miles, and that she had been terribly extravagant and had used up all the walk that was in her, and would please be so kind as to send a taxi and not leave her to perish in a strange land among the savage tribes in the Bronx.

When Peaches reached home that night she found that all the flesh she had lost was her pocketbook containing ten dollars, and I was set back ten dollars for cab hire, making a total reduction of four pounds—English money. A few days later while I was down town Mrs. Garuthers popped in, also at lunch time, and carefully explained to friend wife that the only way to beat back an attack of avoirdupois is to take electric baths.

An hour later Peaches gathered up the family plate and exchanged it for an electric blanket, which she had sent home immediately.

It was cold that night so I wasn't at all surprised to see what I supposed was a Mackinaw coat spread over the bed.

I figured on reaching Dreamland by the fast express but, heavens! how warm it got to get.

"The janitor is sure annoying the radiators with a lot of steam tonight," I said, feverish, but all I got was a sharp "Shush!" from the other half of the sketch.

A half hour passed and one by one my features trickled away from my face. The temperature jumped up to 211 in the dark.

"Don't move!" snapped Peaches; "don't move!" For another half hour I strolled with Dante through his favorite boiler room. I felt something sharp and peculiar on my back. It was one of my shoulder blades peeping out to see what the matter was. The temperature had started to display itself in four figures when I gasped, "What is this thing that's over us—a plumber's blow-pipe?"

"Shush!" whispered Peaches. "It's an electric blanket—we're reducing!" Shrieking the battery of Freedom I pushed the volcano of the bed and jumped to my feet.

Peaches also jumped to her feet and with one of them stepped on an ohm or something, whereupon she let a blood-curdling yell out of her that could be heard in Winnipeg.

Then she put her other foot down and landed on a volt or an ampere or something equally exciting and became short-circuited. She was the best little short-circuit that ever fussed a fuse.

For two minutes that room looked like a thunderstorm with Peaches playing all the elements.

When I stepped out the current turned off and all the live wires out of her hair Peaches collapsed on the sofa.

Sometimes It Takes the Form of Rag-Time Clothing.

screaming! "Take it away! Take it away! Now I know what a hard life the third rail must lead!"

I think the electric blanket has cured friend wife.

At any rate all the exercising do-funnys have been presented to the janitor's children, and Peaches has promised to be kind to a double chin if Nature alms her one.

Old King Solomon had the right idea when he said to his typewriter, "Vanity, vanity, all is vanity!"

If a surgeon could remove our Vanity as easily as he removes an appendix there'd be a lot more money in the savings bank.

What do you think?

HOW ONE MAN GOT HIS START

Couldn't Go in for a Literary Career, So Went Into Hardware Business.

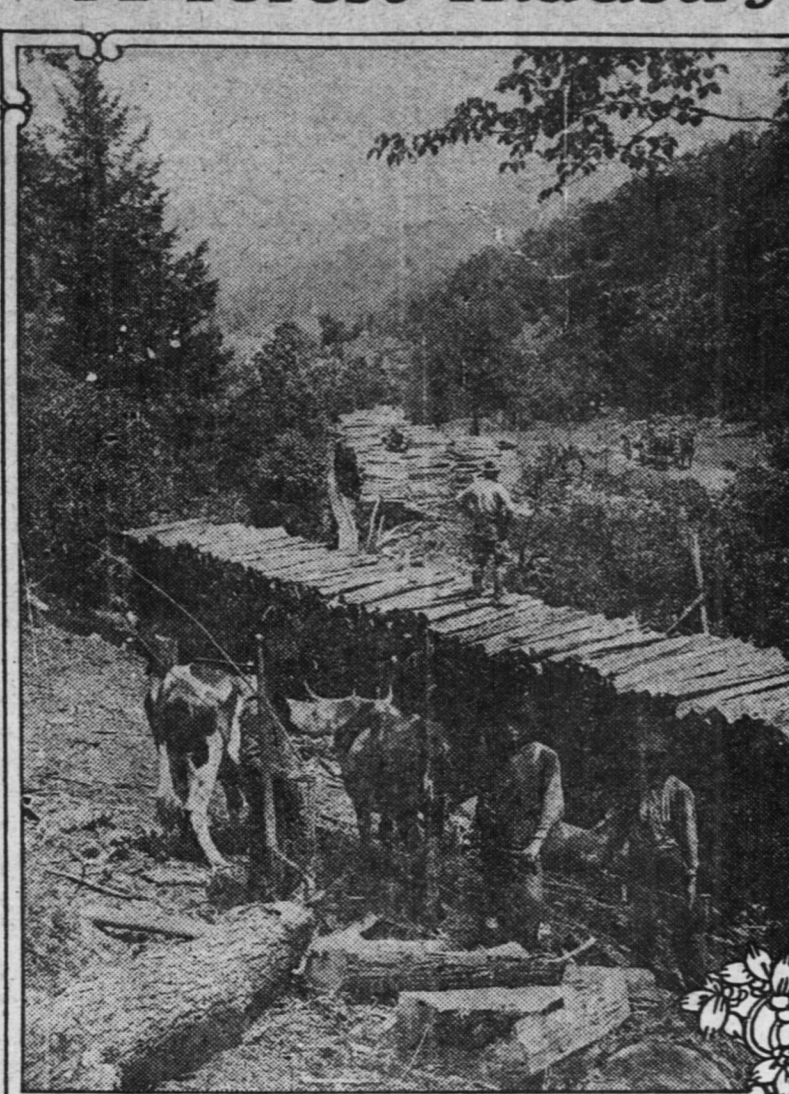

"I got my start in life," said a wealthy retired hardware dealer, "in a singular manner.

"You might not think it, I having passed the major portion of my life in selling nails, padlocks, stoves and shovels, but in my early youth my great ambition was to be a writer, an author. I had no doubt whatever that that was what I was cut out for, and certainly I worked at it good and hard; but none of the publishers to whom I sent my things seemed to agree with me. As fast as I sent the things in to them they would send them back.

"But that didn't worry me. I knew that sooner or later they would come to like what I wrote and buy it. What got my goat was the expense. I was a very ready writer and I wrote long pieces. The stamps I had to use to send these pieces out and get them back cost me a lot of money.

"When I realized how much I was paying out for stamps I said to myself: 'Humph! I'll save up that money for five years and then I'll go to writing again.' And for the next five years I did put aside regularly the amount that I would otherwise have spent for stamps and you would be surprised if I should tell you how much it amounted to. But at the end of that time I did not again take up writing.

A Forest Industry

Acid and pulp wood are split and skidded at $1.75 per cord by contract.

A Forest In the Bottom Lands

The vine covered trunks are a feature of the forests in the bottom lands and add to the beauty of the area. The straight, clear trunks will furnish excellent timber.

Base of a Fire Tower

The telephone connection between the fire tower and the headquarters of men who may be sent to extinguish a fire which has been discovered is an essential feature. The telephone instrument is especially made for this field service and may be securely locked in a metal box.

LOCUST BORER.

Does Large Amount of Damage In State—A Method of Control Sought. A feature of forest protection which has been brought to the attention of the state forester's office is the locust borer, an insect which attacks locust trees. The black locust has been extensively planted in Kentucky for posts, and there is hardly a farm in Kentucky that does not utilize to the locust borer through the state. The damage from this insect has been repeatedly called to the attention of the state forester and is not confined to any particular section of the state, but mining companies have planted black locust for ties and other purposes on account of its durability in contact with the ground. Black locust is also extensively planted to regenerate worn-out soil, since it is a legume, as clover or cowpeas. The locust borer has recently done a large amount of damage in Kentucky. In some instances it has destroyed whole groves. In order to combat this the entomologist of the Kentucky experiment station, in co-operation with the state forester, has been conducting a study of the locust borer through the state. ### SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson III.—Fourth Quarter, For Oct. 17, 1915.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, 11 Kings v. 1-14. Memory Verses, 7, 8—Golden Text, Ex. xv. 26—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

In our last lesson we saw the triumphant entry into glory, without dying, of the discouraged man who wanted to die. If we would keep our eyes on the glory which surely awaits us we would not be so easily cast down (Rom. viii. 18). We also saw the Spirit of God in Elijah so manifestly upon Elisha that others recognized it. So it should be with us. Elisha longed for a double portion of Elijah's spirit and by his unwavering beholding he obtained it. The Lord wrought through Elisha six miracles and through Elisha at least twelve. Like Elijah he divided Jordan, restored a boy to life, multiplied bread and oil and did other wonders which Elijah did not. Previous to the lesson of today, besides those just mentioned, there was the healing of the waters at Jericho and of the poisoned pottage and the waters that filled ditches without wind or rain.

The multiplying of the widow's oil to pay her debt and save her sons (iv. 1-7) suggests what might be our privilege if we were empty vessels and believed God. The bringing to life of the Shunammite's son brings us face to face with Him who is the resurrection and the life, who alone does wonders and still liveth. The people in today's lesson are a proud, mighty man, captain of the host of the king of Syria, very self important, but a leper; a little maid of Israel, who loved to magnify the God of Israel; a man of God, who lived before God and sought nothing from man, and some servants who were wiser than their master.

How sad and how suggestive the words concerning this mighty man in valor who had wrought deliverance for Syria, "a leper," an incurable sick man with the most loathsome of all diseases. What did his greatness amount to under these circumstances? Leprosy is the most remarkable emblem of sin in the Bible, and all are by nature children of wrath, dead in trespasses and sins, spiritually lepers (Eph. ii. 1-3). What profit was there in the abundance or the riches of the men of Luke xii and xvi when their souls were required of them? What does it profit a man to be great in this world or to have millions of money if he is not a saved man? If he dies out of Christ the fate of the rich man of Luke xvi must be his.

This little captive maid of the land of Israel, if she had been an ordinary child, might have said: "I am glad that he is a leper. Why did he take me away from my home?" and other such rebellious words; but, though she must have had an aching heart, she was evidently a true child of God and, like Joseph in the house of Potiphar, sought to glorify God even in her very trying circumstances. She was like Pollyanna. She was sorry for Naaman and told his wife, on whom she waited, of the prophet of God in Israel who could do such wonderful things. How she puts to shame the complainers who are so prone to murmur because of their circumstances and also all who know of the redemption that is in Christ Jesus, but never tell others of it. Where is the spirit of him who said, "As much as in me is, I am ready to preach the gospel." "By all means save some" (Rom. i. 14-16; I Cor. ix. 22). Because of the little maid's testimony kings are moved and health brought to the leper, but we do not hear of any reward for the little maid. The Lord will not forget her in the resurrection (Luke xiv. 14; Matt. x. 42).

The king of Syria sent Naaman to the king of Israel with a letter and much silver and gold and ten changes of raiment (verses 5, 6). The king of Israel was the wrong man to go to, but Elisha heard of it and said, "Let him come now to me, and he shall know that there is a prophet in Israel" (verse 8). Can you see the great man, with all his retinue, at the door of the house of Elisha, expecting the prophet to come out to him and with some great display give him health? Do you see the man of God calmly abiding in his house and sending a messenger to say, "Go and wash in Jordan seven times?" (Verses 9-11). Then do you see a great, proud man going away in a rage? (Verse 12). What a fearful thing is pride and self importance, and how foolish are our thoughts! Yet Abraham suffered because he had his own thoughts, and Mary had three days' sorrow because she supposed (Gen. xx. 11; Luke ii. 44). By the reasonable advice of his servants Naaman became calm and obeyed the voice of God by the prophet and was thoroughly healed, made clean (verses 13, 14). Now see him and all his company again before Elisha acknowledging the God of Israel as the true God and urging the prophet to accept a reward or a blessing. But the man of God refused, reminding us of Abraham and the king of Solomon (Gen. xiv. 22, 23). There is no salvation for the sinner except by the blood of Jesus Christ, who went down into the waters of Jordan, or judgment, for us. We cannot recompense Him for salvation, but we can serve Him because He saves us. The gift of God cannot be purchased (Acts viii. 20).

Between Two Fires.

She was desperately gone on them both, and she couldn't think which one to choose. It was rather perplexing, no doubt, for one she was bound to refuse.

She gazed at them both in despair, quite puzzled to know what to do. As soon as she thought about one she cared for the other one too.

They still remained under her gaze, little recking the trouble they brought. It really was hard to decide. They were both so delightful, she thought.

She couldn't say which one she'd have; her efforts fell hopelessly flat. It's really exceedingly hard selecting a new hat.

With warm weather and vacations still with us it seems farfetched to bring in our furs. But furs and more of them are the coming note, and this handsome design of black seal, in rippling fullness and edged with silk, suggests one new design. Please observe the smallish size of the muff.

New Towel Ends.

The ends of the newest embroidered towels are surely trying to emulate the latest of dress fashions, for they are showing every variety of scallops. Where one was once content to hem-stitch the ends of a hand towel and place a simple embroidered letter in the middle of one end, to be strictly up to date one must now slash the towel into some new cut of scalloping. There are square scallops, pointed ones, wide and shallow and deep rounded scallops and scallops within scallops. And they are embroidered in colors, often with a finish of a second buttonholing of another color or a crocheted pilot edge. Fillet crochet inserts are quite the thing now for towel ends; sometimes one sees a piece of fillet insertion with three initials of the intended owner crocheted in the mesh. Cutwork initials or solid initials with an oval background of cutwork are very effective and are not difficult when one considers the results obtained. The plain woven ends of Turkish towels are now being embroidered, most often with a flowered border of darned work or French knots.

A GIRLS' DESIGN.

This simple frock is developed with white net or chiffon over pale pink. Its shortish skirt is finished with a wreath of roses, which also complete the unique sleeves, while two rose clusters finish the corsage and belt line.

The Cotton Net on New Handkerchiefs. Sheer linen lawn is the material of which most of the handkerchiefs are made with the exception of the glove handkerchiefs, and they are usually made of crepe de chine. Cotton net or tulle forms the border band on which is gathered a platted frill of the net, one inch wide. So it would seem that the frill has invaded even the realm of mouchoirs. Linen lawn in rose, straw and blue with rounded corners are the handkerchiefs that boast the net or tulle frill. Square corners are reserved for those with the hemstitched finish.

The Gravy, Not the Meat.

I was speaking to a friend on the question of eating less meat. Said he: "It's not the meat itself I should miss if I gave it up, but the gravy." And there, I believe, lies the chief barrier to vegetarianism with many. One of the great advocates of a non-meat diet in the early nineteenth century was Sir Richard Phillips, whose eloquent writings on the subject were suddenly discontinued by the revelation that although he would eat no meat, Sir Richard was guilty of gravy over his potatoes!—London Chronicle.

LOUNGING ROBES.

Negligee Frequently Reflects the Mood of the Wearer.

LICENSE IN ITS SELECTION.

Only Rich Can Have Very Fragile Boudoir Frocks, but the Woman Who is Clever With Her Needle May Fashion Her Own.

Negligees are the most "temperamental" of all the garments with which the modern woman avails herself. They reflect every mood of the wearer and are a more direct revelation of the intimate personal tastes than any other type of latter day garb.

Since a woman is proverbially known to have many moods it follows that the designers of boudoir garments have been permitted a great deal of license

JAPANESE EMBROIDERED SILK KIMONO.

In the selection of fabrics, colors and lines with which to evolve the airy trifles that bring a suggestion of rest and relaxation to the ultimate possessor. The vast majority of exquisite lounging robes are by no means reasonable in price. As a matter of fact, their cost is commensurate with their high, artistic beauty, and only the favored relatives of the millionaires are permitted to own the exceedingly delicate creations made of "real" laces and incriminated with hand wrought embroideries, exalting specimens of amazing needle art.

However, it must not be thought that the woman of average means has been neglected in the all important matter of the negligee. She may make choice of a simple model of cotton stuff with flowered pattern and satin ribbons used to border the front, the neck and the sleeves. The old time kimono, which really wrought a revolution in the tea gown industry, is still with us. It is no longer considered good taste to wear the latter in crude fabrics or untidy colors. Now that pretty silks are to be had at reasonable prices the average woman finds it good economy to invest in an attractive negligee that may be readily cleansed at the dry cleaner's or tubbed after the regulation manner.

In the illustration is shown a kimono which if bought ready made would be rather expensive, but the woman who is clever with her needle may make one for herself at one-half the cost. This is of blue Japanese silk lined with a faint flesh colored silk, and the embroidery is done in pale pink chrysanthemums.

Many women do not feel trim and tidy in the belted negligee. They make choice of a sort of empire type which is gathered into a high belt and which has the waist line defined by a satin ribbon of some pretty lace. The posing of the waist line is a matter of individual taste. The slim, willowy type of woman likes a low set girdle, but the woman inclined to stoutness insists on a belt.

Midsummer negligees include charming effects evolved in chiffon cloth or voile and made without any lining. In some respects they are very similar to veranda coats of three-quarters or seven-eighths length, with the side seams slashed and bordered all about with braid embroideries or other like garniture. These garments have two hours, and the sleeves are mere extensions of the shoulder.

Elaborate Neckwear. Neckwear is so airy and so elaborate these days that only the very self-assured woman essays to make her own neck fixings. The shops are full of exquisite collars, chemisettes and other neck arrangements, and, though one must pay a good price for a smart bit of neckwear, these flimsy belongings may be laundered very satisfactorily or dry cleaned inexpensively, and it is wiser to own two distinctive and becoming chemisettes, laundering them oneself, than to keep spending pennies for cheaper affairs.

Farmer's Fruit Cake. Soak three cups of dried apples overnight in warm water. Chop slightly in the morning and simmer two hours in two cups of molasses. Add two well beaten eggs, one cupful of sugar, one cupful of butter, one dessertspoonful of soda and flour enough to make rather a stiff batter. Flavor with nutmeg and cinnamon to the taste. Bake in a quick oven.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

How the Trout Twins Learned Obedience.

They Looked So Much Alike.

"HOW would you like a fish story?" asked daddy, smiling. "Truly fishes?" Jack wanted to know. "I'd rather have mermaids," Evelyn preferred. "All right," agreed daddy obligingly. "We'll have a fish story and a mermaid story all in one."

The kiddies cuddled down, one on either arm, and daddy began: "Once upon a time Father and Mother Trout set up homemaker in a little brook overhung with alder bushes and young beeches. When the sun shone brightly it dappled the water with bright spots just like a mirror, and when storms or dangers came the trout swam out of sight under cool, slippery stones and hid there."

" weren't there any baby trout?" Evelyn wanted to know. "Yes, the 'Trout Twins' is the story, and their names were Speckle and Flash. They were boys. They were not very long, and they looked so much alike that even Mother Trout could not tell them apart. When they swam out from under their home rock to sun on their sandy floor or to swim in the cool, clean brook water she always tied a little red string around Flash's tail so he could not play pranks on her if he wet his little red collar and claim that Speckle did it."

Jack giggled, for only yesterday, when he tore his middy, he claimed that Evelyn did it.

"The twins were sort of silvery, gray-green, and when the sun shone on them you could see that some day they'd have little red spots on their sides, just like their daddy."

"One day when they were playing somersault in their brook a small boy, with a birch rod and a bent pin, came and sat right down on its bank, so that his shadow fell across them."

"Did they run?" exclaimed Jack.

"No. They swam, darted home to Mother Trout and forgot their fear while she gave them nice sandwiches of tiny insects and baby worms. Then she warned them about the kind of big worms small boys hang on bent pins."

"Mother Trout made them both promise that always when they were hungry they would come to her for a sandwich instead of greedily snatching at the bent pin. And when children obey they rarely come to harm."

"You forgot my mermaid!" Evelyn reminded.

"She's for tomorrow bedtime," he promised, kissing the both kiddies good night.

A Matrimonial Shack

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

Jamieson proposed to his stenographer within sixty days after she entered his service. He had never seen her before she came to work for him; consequently he had known her but two months.

"You know little or nothing about me," was his reply to her declaration. "I know you are refined, that you have character, and I am willing to risk the rest of my money on you will have to take me all on trust."

"Don't you care to know anything of my antecedents?"

No. It would doubtless make me ashamed of my own antecedents. We will be marrying each other, not each other's antecedents. Marriage is a new birth. I expect to be a much better man under your influence."

She fixed her eyes on him curiously, but asked no further questions. She understood his peculiar makeup instinctively. It was fortunate she did. Couples who are incapable of understanding each other are liable to quarrel and wedlock has taken the edge off their romance.

Jamieson gave his fiancée a vacation for the rest of her term of service with him. She was to take a rest, which she needed. A year before she came to work for him she had lived in affluence. Reverses had deprived her of the beautiful home in which she had been born and had always lived. She and her mother had been turned out of it, and half a year later the mother had died, leaving her daughter alone in the world. While in Jamieson's service she had been grieving, and she wondered how she could have come to covet one so lugubrious. He had never asked for the cause of her melancholy, and she had never offered to reveal it.

And now she had suggested that she tell him something about her past. She wished him to know that she was born in a station no less exalted than his own, for he was not only well to do, but educated and refined. Though she liked his independent way of looking on marriage, she was a bit disappointed that he had not given her an opportunity to tell him that she had been brought up a lady and until a year before had lived in a home that it had nearly broken her heart to leave. But she knew that she must take him as she found him and had confidence that beneath his somewhat crude philosophy he was not a bad man, and she was quite sure that despite his matter of fact way of looking at sentimental things he was not devoid of sentiment.

Jamieson insisted on his fiancée going to the country for the summer months. "I don't wish my bride to look like a piece of marble," he said. "I desire that you put in the time between now and our marriage trying to get some color in your cheeks. I can make all the necessary arrangements for a place to live and all that. If you don't wish to share of it you would not be getting the rest you need. Besides, think how pleasant it will be not to be bothered with suggestions."

She accepted his frankness, but it seemed to her that he was a trifle selfish. He was thinking of himself in wanting his bride to be approved by his friends instead of desiring her to regain her health for her own sake. He was a good man, but was inclined to selfishness.

Jamieson, while she was away in the country, did not write her long and loving letters. He claimed that a man of thirty-eight was too old for "a sort of thing," as he expressed it. He said that he would try to make up for the deficiency after marriage by giving her a kiss at least once a month. She took these things with a "good deal of salt," but after all how much pleasure it would have been to be engaged to a lover-like man!

He wrote that he was looking for a "shack," as he called it, for them to live in, then one day he wrote her that he had found one. He didn't suppose she would like it, but it was the best he could do. He managed to say one pleasant thing—he believed the house in which a couple lived should stand in the name of the wife and he had put the deed in her name.

The summer came to an end at last, and the future Mrs. Jamieson returned to the city. Her lover seemed quite pleased with the change in her. He said that he would not be ashamed of her appearance. He asked her if she would like a large or a small wedding, and she replied that since it was evident that she was his own wife, she would like a small wedding. He said that he would like to have a small wedding, but she showed his obstinacy in refusing to decide the matter, and she chose a small wedding. Indeed, she preferred that no guest should be present.

They were married at noon, and, since the groom was unable to leave his business, instead of taking a wedding trip they went direct to their future home. The bride asked no questions about it, but she was in a quiver to see it. She did not believe it was a shack, but she doubted since Jamieson needed his capital in his business that he would buy a pretentious abode.

It was dark when they reached their new home, but when Mrs. Jamieson alighted and looked at it she drew back. She was before the house from which she had been turned out a year before. Then she looked at her husband in wondering inquiry. But he hurried her into it, and when they were inside he said:

"How do you like your shack?"

Then it burst upon her that under an assumed matter of fact philosophy he had been covering up the sentiment of a lover.

A woman can't see why a man would rather throw things at a wastebasket than throw things in it.

The high cost of living wasn't such a much in the old days when a girl was satisfied to put up her hair in curl papers instead of investing $7 in a permanent wave that isn't permanent.

A pretty man can't understand why so many good looking women marry such homely animals.

When he is courting her he is always telling her how unworthy of her he is. And then he marries her and proves it.

Anyway, the average man would rather play poker with a bad loser than play with a good winner.

EXTENSIVE TOWN PLANNING.

In the consideration of the sufficiency of city or town planning we may say that no community or group of communities is an entity in itself. The increased interchange of business activities, the development of the broad lines of social and business intercourse made possible by the telephone, the telegraph, the automobile and the many transit lines which are penetrating into the remotest sections of our country, are making necessary the development of a broader community consciousness that should include not only our cities and their environs, but large units of territory, which may not even stop on the boundary lines of the states.—Town Development Magazine.

A SANITARY SURVEY.

Report Telling How Springfield, Ill., Could Lower Its Death Rate.

The last report of the Russell Sage foundation report on health conditions in Springfield, Ill., recently delivered to the Springfield survey committee in the form of a printed pamphlet, sums up the situation and tells just what the city ought to do to improve the lives of its residents who die needlessly each year from preventable diseases. The sanitary improvements needed in different parts of the city are discussed, as are the question of cost and relative importance of the various improvements. Increased appropriation for the health department is said to be specially important. The report concludes:

"Springfield has a well defined and clearly localized public health problem. It has a combination of serious life wastage from preventable diseases, fairly good sanitary conditions, except for the presence of an extraordinary number of wells and privies, and a poor sewerage system. Certain parts of the city, notably the wards east of Tenth street, have excessively high rates of mortality from preventable causes, and it is in these districts that sanitary conditions are especially bad. The plain fact is that people are dying in parts of the city because they are ignorant, because they are poor, because they are surrounded by inferior sanitary conditions and because they do not give them a proper health department service."

"What is needed at once to meet Springfield's public health problem is fairly obvious. The wells and privies should be done away with, and the city should see to it that its water supply and sewerage and make the mains of both systems available to all. The city should also see to it that the benefits of such improvements are distributed no one simply because he is poor to front this. It is to the advantage both of the individual and of the whole department, to overcome popular ignorance with regard to sanitary matters. Finally, the city should provide its health department with proper equipment, the way of staff and funds, so that the department may adequately cope with the various administrative phases of the needed preventive work."

It also should be said here that the investment in the health department will probably, dollar for dollar, save more lives than will the investments for the various sanitary improvements. This is not to say that the other improvements, as in the water supply and sewer system, should not be made. It means simply that the health department need be most urgent and should be met first.

"The whole question of better health in Springfield is in no sense limited to the realm of theory. It is a thoroughly practical matter and is squarely up to the citizens and the city administration. That public health is purchasable is now a well recognized fact. Springfield has a splendid opportunity to buy to save 100 or more lives a year and to prevent much additional sickness. Realizing that the safety and welfare of the citizens are involved to this extent, there ought to be no question of the city's willingness and determination to find the funds needed."

A Home Products Dinner.

In order to sustain the interest in home products which had been aroused among Sioux Falls residents last autumn through the holding of a "Made in Sioux Falls" dinner, the Commercial club of that city recently held a "Made in Sioux Falls" dinner. Each article served had been made in that city, the menu specifying the brand or maker of the article in every instance. The dinner was paid for by the manufacturers, and the guests were the retail merchants who were in a position to handle home produced goods.

Talks were given upon community building and the promotion of home industries. It is believed that the occasion was the means of bringing about a better understanding between the manufacturer and retailer and of creating a desire for co-operation among them.

A Neighborhood League.

Residents of that section of Delaware and Chester counties, Pa., lying along the main line between Radnor and Paoli have organized a neighborhood league and applied to the county court for a charter.

The purpose of the league as given in the charter is for the betterment of the social and moral conditions of the community. Twenty-one directors will direct the affairs of the organization, the terms of seven of the directors expiring each year.

Easad Pasha's Revenge.

A number of years ago Genl Bey, Easad Pasha's brother and, like himself, an Albanian nationalist, was shot by order of Abdul Hamid. For this reason, when the Turkish parliament deposed the sultan, Easad Pasha begged to be sent to Yildiz kiosk to tell Abdul of his fate. Accompanied by three others, he presented himself before his brother's murderer and pronounced the formula: "In accordance with Sharia, the representatives of the nation have decreed your deposition. Follow us." Easad subsequently declared that April 27, 1906, when he thus tested the sword of revenge, was the happiest day he had ever known.—London Spectator.

FOR GOOD SILAGE.

Any crop, to make good silage, should be harvested at the proper stage of maturity. Very seldom will corn and cane be ready for silage at the same time. Corn is usually ready several weeks before cane has reached the proper stage of maturity. The mixing of the two crops under these circumstances would not increase the value of the resulting silage, and, in addition, the labor of filling would likely be increased. The best results will come from putting the corn into the silo when it has reached the proper stage. The stalks will be while the stalk and leaves are still green and when the ears have reached the stage when they have begun to dent or become hard.—Kansas Farmer.

SAVE THE POTATO CROP.

Late Blight and Rot Fungus Now Prevailing in Ohio.

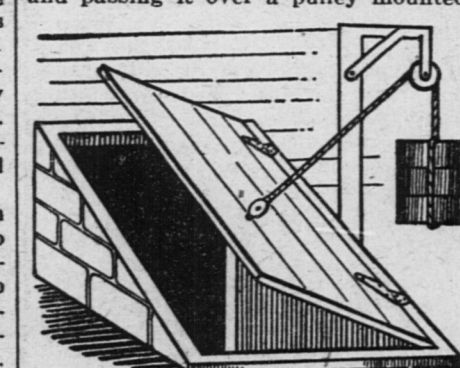

[Ohio agricultural experiment station.] The late blight and rot fungus of potato has been collected in practically all of the potato fields about Wooster, Aug. 9-10, 1915, by representatives of the botanical department of the Ohio state university. This has already made unusual progress under the recent cool, moist weather and certainly has been at work for a week or more. The same fungus was collected Aug. 15, 1904; July 25, 1905; Aug. 9, 1906, and Aug. 13 and 14, 1912. Should the season continue, as heretofore, with cool weather or be very moist it is feared the injury to the late crop may prove to be very great, even exceeding that of 1905.

The disease works very rapidly and is distinguishable from the other drying of potato leaves by the milky-like or frosted appearance of the under portion of the diseased parts of leaves. This late blight and rot of potatoes may be prevented by spraying frequently with strong bordeaux mixture made with four to six pounds of blue vitriol and four to six pounds of lime to fifty gallons of water, the spraying to begin immediately. This spray requires to be repeated at eight to ten day intervals until the crop is matured. In 1906 spraying as above gave a gain of forty to forty-five bushels of marketable potatoes to the acre upon the late crop. Four to six sprayings may be required on very late plantings. Under conditions such as have characterized the season of 1915 delay in spraying treatment is most unwise. The rot of tubers follows the leaf drying. Instructions for making and applying the spray are given in the Spray Calendar, bulletin 232, which will be sent upon application.

For these later applications of the spray about 100 gallons per acre or even more will be required for effective covering of leaves. With the ordinary four row sprayer it will be wise to go twice over the field, moving in the opposite direction the second time, after the first spray has dried.

For a Heavy Ceiling Door.

A good ceiling door after may be made by fastening a rope to the door and passing it over a pulley mounted on a post. Hang a weight to the other end heavy enough to make the two balance each other.—Farm Progress.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

Keep all weeds from going to seed and so destroy part of the troublemakers for next year.

The fall fairs and flower shows begin soon. Prepare to show something. It pays you and helps make the show a success.

Dahlias have done exceedingly well so far this year. Did you have any? Now is a good time to select good varieties.

Geraniums and snapdragons may be lifted from the garden and potted for winter blossoms late in August or early in September.

It may be worth while to stop all increase of branches or buds on the melon vines, forcing the vines to hasten maturity of the fruits already formed.

Is there a bird bath in the yard? A better creek filled with water on the post or other place out of reach of the cat or dog will be enjoyed by the birds.

One of the best garden perennials for cut flowers this season has been the Achillea ptarmica, the pearl. It is a splendid, small white flower suitable for mixing with larger colored flowers.

Now is a good time to go over the fence corners and unused yards with a scythe and remove the burdock and other weeds that have found a home there. It will reduce the weed crop next year and make the place look better.—LeRoy Cady, Associate Horticulturist, University Farm, St. Paul.

Logic.

"What a boy of your age doesn't know the parts of speech!" exclaimed the schoolmaster.

"No, sir," replied the pupil.

"Haven't you ever heard of a noun?"

"Oh, yes, sir."

"Well, what comes next?"

"I don't know, sir."

"A pronoun," said the master. "Now remember that. Then comes the verb. Now what follows that?"

"A preverb, please, sir."—London Scraps.

A Biter Bit

By F. A. MITCHEL

[It is obvious from this story that the story teller was a young man bent on an adventure.]

One morning the postman left me a letter with the firm name of Outcalt, Hardy & Dunn, attorneys-at-law, stamped on the left hand corner of the envelope. I opened it and read the following, signed by the lawyers:

Your proposition to unite the properties so long in legal dispute by marrying Miss Auchincloss has been referred to her with our assurances that the tangle between the two can never be unraveled except by such a union. Present circumstances if continued will in time eat up a property which removed from litigation would produce an income of $5,000 clear of all expenses. Miss Auchincloss, never having seen you, desires us to send her your photograph.

It was evident to me that the letter doubtless intended for another Anthony Page had come to me. I finished my photograph in a note stating in substance the note I had received from the attorneys and adding that I did not care to act further through them, but would be pleased to form her acquaintance direct. I chose this course, thinking that the real Anthony Page might be known personally to Messrs. Outcalt, Hardy & Dunn and my photograph if sent to them would give me away.

In due time I received a note signed Bertha Auchincloss acknowledging the receipt of my photograph and enclosing one of her own. It represented a young girl of eighteen or nineteen, pretty as a peach and in whose eye lurked an inexhaustible fund of mischief. This will be a case of diamond cut diamond, I said to myself, and I see a lot of fun ahead. The letter was very short, stating that the writer agreed with me in direct action instead of the "horrid lawyers" and inviting me to call.

Without proper consideration as to the risk I ran of being horsewhipped by some of the young lady's relatives I went to see her. She came into the room smilingly and extended her hand, which I grasped and pressed. We began our acquaintance without the slightest reference to the subject of the union of property and, so far as that first meeting was concerned, made no progress in coming to an understanding with regard to a union of properties. This was gratifying to me, for the moment we should enter into details I would betray myself. On leaving I asked permission to call again, which was graciously accorded. Having made no reply to the note of the lawyers, I did not hear from them again.

So delighted was I with my success that on my second visit to Miss Auchincloss I ventured to mention the subject of my calls. She dropped her eyes to the floor and said that before the matter could be considered she must take time to have inquiries made concerning me. She could not even contemplate such a step without knowing more about me. I winced at this, for it seemed to me that she would make such inquiries without discovering that I was an impostor. Nevertheless I brazened it out and offered to give her references. To this she replied that she already had the names of some persons who could give her the required information. Of course she meant friends of the real Anthony Page and I hoped he had a better character than I, though I did not express the hope to her.

Notwithstanding the perils by which I was surrounded my bark sailed on over an untroubled sea. At times I wondered how I could escape the dangers that beset me, but the truth is I was falling heels over head in love with Bertha Auchincloss and was infatuated not only with her, but the part I was playing. My calls grew more and more frequent, but instead of taking up the matter on account of which we had come together she not only refrained from mentioning it, but discouraged my doing so. This, taken with the fact that nothing adverse had come from her inquiries, gave me quite a clear coast.

Plunging headlong into love as I was, the time soon came when I made a declaration without confessing my identity. I told her I loved her and were the property on account of which we had come together sent to the bottom of the ocean still would I love her, still would I marry her if she would consent. She did not drop her head on my shoulder and whisper "Yes." She burst into a laugh.

"The next time," she said, "you play a game like that, keep your wits about you. My aunt, for whom I am named, is the lady you have supposed you were visiting. Since you first came to see me she has married the other Anthony Page. She is forty years old, and he is fifty. I took an interest in that case and remarked the handwriting of the letter he wrote my aunt and which was sent her by the lawyers. Believing that their reply to him must have fallen into the hands of a scamp—for the writing was not like his—I sent for your photograph, thinking to have a little fun. Being pleased with it and realizing that it takes two to carry out a lark, I invited you to call. Accept my thanks for having afforded me the most amusing episode of my life."

I was madly in love with a girl who had been fooling me. Nevertheless, I began all over again and in time captured her. She says that in marrying me she did better than her aunt with the other Anthony Page, since their property involved only a hundred thousand dollars, while mine is half a million.

Orthography of Shakespeare.

Some interesting Shakespearean appear in the London Record. It is well known that in Shakespeare's time orthography was little accounted of and that Shakespeare himself would have considered the question of spelling his name in one way and not another a mere waste of time. It is, however, worth recording how the name struck the Bodleian officials when the first folio was given a place and mark in the library. The entries are as follows and were all written in 1623: Shakespeare, Shakspeare, Shakspeare, Shakspeare, Shakspeare. The testimony, so far as it goes, is obviously in favor of the form "Shakespeare" and of the present pronunciation of the word.
